

Three soldiers of the Indian Army's 60 Parachute Field Ambulance and Surgical Unit in Korea, January 1952. The first Indian unit to take part in the UN multinational force during the Korean War (1950–53), 60 Parachute Field Ambulance and Surgical Unit consisted of 17 officers and 329 other ranks including female medical officers and nursing officers. It reached Korea on 20 November 1950 and while the main component was attached to 27 British Commonwealth Infantry Brigade, elements were deployed to provide medical assistance to the local Korean hospitals in the rear area. (Sidney Schaer/Getty Images)