A soldier of the Indian Camel Corps at Bikaner, 19 October 1968. Each camel could carry two soldiers on its back, plus a machine gun, a mortar and enough food and water to last a week. (UPI/Bettmann Archive/Getty Images)

By December 1971, the Indian Army had 927 medium tanks and more than 3,000 artillery pieces, including Soviet 122mm, 130mm and 152mm guns and 105mm Abbot self-propelled guns from Britain. Newly introduced mortar types included the French 120mm AM 50 and Soviet 160mm M-160.