bearers in 2020, including one-fourth of its vice presidents and almost one-third of its secretaries. (see Figure 3.2). Chapter 17 specifically details the importance of the BJP's strategies with women outreach overall and how they changed. Crucially, for our purposes here, OBC and SC women accounted for as much as 60 per cent of BJP's state-level women office-bearers. While upper-caste women retained a big chunk of positions (40 per cent), their numbers were significantly dwarfed by those of non-upper caste women appointees. This shows how deep-rooted and structural the BJP's shift to OBCs and SCs was. It was implemented at various levels of the party leadership.
