the royal seal. The seal was used like a stamp of approval. It gave her the power to look over and okay documents.

Shah Jahan had other wives, but Mumtaz was his favorite. A historian of the time said that Shah Jahan's love for Mumtaz "exceeded by a thousand times what he felt for any other." He called Mumtaz "the companion, close confidante, associate and intimate friend of that successful ruler, in hardship and comfort, joy and grief, when traveling or in residence." She used her power behind the scenes. Her husband asked her advice on all important