decisions. Because Mumtaz always remembered to help the poor, the people loved her.

By Shah Jahan's time, Agra was a wonder of Asia. The city was a meeting place for scholars, writers, and religious leaders. A European visitor who saw Agra during Shah Jahan's rule described it as one of the biggest cities in the world. Gardens lined the many mansions on the banks of the Yamuna River.

