

By Muslim custom, a dead person is buried within twenty-four hours. So Mumtaz's body was laid to rest in a garden near the fortress. Shah Jahan put on white clothes (the color of mourning) and shut himself inside a tent. Eight days later, he reappeared. His beard and hair had turned white, even though he was only thirty-nine.