

The Taj is no ordinary building, and Shah Jahan had to be patient. More than twenty thousand workers and craftsmen labored on the memorial for nearly twenty-two years. Most of them were Hindus. They needed a place to live, and a city was built for them south of the construction site. It was named after Mumtaz.

