

To restore the original color of the Taj Mahal, a special mud pack is applied to the stone from time to time. This is followed by a “bath” of pure water. An enormous scaffold has to be built for the job.