

Taktra Rinpoche

At such a young age, the Dalai Lama wasn’t yet ready to rule Tibet. First Reting Rinpoche and then Taktra Rinpoche did that. But when the Dalai Lama turned six, he was old enough to start training as a Buddhist monk. Tutors taught the Dalai Lama and Lobsang lessons together. The boys learned to read and write. And they had to memorize religious texts. They learned how to meditate in silence and reflect on all they had learned.