

As the Dalai Lama passed through regions of Tibet on his way home, including the village where he had been born, he saw how poorly his own people were living under Chinese control. The Chinese weren't keeping their promise to let Tibet govern itself. PLA troops kept moving in. They took land away from the people. They tore down monasteries. They forced the Tibetans to join the army or work on new building programs. They took children away to China to attend Communist schools there. They were trying to completely destroy Tibet's culture and religion.