

Tibetan Freedom Concerts

People all over the world have helped the Dalai Lama spread his message. And some very famous musicians have participated in the Tibetan Freedom Concerts.

One hundred thousand people gathered at the first freedom concert in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park in 1996. In between performances by bands including the Beastie Boys and the Red Hot Chili Peppers, fans heard from exiled Tibetans and other experts about why it was so important to know Tibet's story.

Since then, the concerts have been held in many cities all around the world. They have raised millions of dollars to support the exiled Tibetan community. And they have also encouraged many young people to stand up for human rights.
