

No other group was required to register in this way. “I saw nothing in it except hatred of Indians,” Gandhi later wrote.

Gandhi urged Indians to use satyagraha and not register. Gandhi and many of his followers broke the law and were sent to jail. But Gandhi saw going to prison as an honorable thing to do. He was being courageous for what he believed in, even if it meant punishment.