FROM SEAWATER. THIS ENSURED THAT THE BRITISH WOULD MAKE HUGE PROFITS FROM THE TAXES ON SALT-EVEN FROM THE INDIAN PEOPLE WHO LIVED WHERE THE SALT WAS HARVESTED! ALL INDIANS WERE FORCED TO BUY SALT FROM THE BRITISH. THIS WAS ESPECIALLY UNFAIR TO THE POOR OF INDIA WHO COULD NOT AFFORD IT.

On April 5, twenty-four days after Gandhi left the ashram, he arrived in Dandi on the coast of the Gulf of Cambay, an inlet of the Arabian Sea. That night, he and his followers prayed on the beach. The next morning, Gandhi waded into the water, to bathe in the Hindu tradition. Then he walked onto the beach and picked up a lump of salt in defiance of the Salt Acts.
