My day would start with a strol of about 2 km around the lodge I was living in. I used to prepare a general schedule during my morning walk, and emphasize two or three things I would definitely like to accomplish during the day, including at least one thing that would help achieve long-term goals.

Once in the office, I would clean the table first. Within the next ten minutes, I would scan al the papers and quickly divide them into different categories: those that required immediate action, low priority ones, ones that could be kept pending, and reading material. Then I would put the high priority papers in front of me and everything else out of sight.

Coming back to SLV-3, about 250 sub-assemblies and
