How did they feel so secure without anything to fal back upon? I believe they drew sustenance from within. They relied more on the inner signals and less on the external cues that I have mentioned above. Are you aware of your inner signals? Do you trust them? Have you taken control over your life into your own hands? Take this from me, the more decisions you can make avoiding external pressures, which wil constantly try to manipulate you, the better your life wil be, the better your society wil become. Infact the entire nation wil benefit by having strong, inwardlooking people as their leaders. A citizenry that thinks for itself, a country of people who trust themselves as individuals, would be virtual y immune to manipulation by any unscrupulous authority or vested interest.

Your wil ingness to use your own inner resources to invest in your life, especial y your imagination, wil bring you success. When you address a task from your own uniquely individual standpoint, you become a whole person.

Everyone on this planet is sent forth by Him to cultivate al the creative potential within us and live at peace with our own choices. We differ in the way we make our choices and evolve our destiny. Life is a difficult game. You can win
