

Figure 3.3 Jam-Firuzkuh: remains of defensive towers. © Courtesy of David Thomas.

required ample pasturage, which was not easily found within traditional urban or settled areas. (As discussed in Chapter 2, these requirements were difficult to meet also at Firuzkuh.[25]) Their extensive encampments likely included large textile enclosures (saraparda) for the elites, as well as