31. Pakistan had almost, but not complete, control according to Steve Coll whose book Ghost Wars recounts the CIA's funding of the Afghan jihad. He asserts that the Agency used Jalaluddin Haqqani, who later became an al-Qaeda and Taliban ally, to test new tactics and weapons systems. Haqqani was so favored with supplies that he was in a position to equip the Arab fighters who came to join the jihad. See: Coll, Ghost Wars, p. 202.
