Alastair Cook, Stuart Broad, Mike Watkinson, Mark Bawden, Gaz Halley and Dave Brown.

The following people heard ideas, read drafts of chapters and/ or lent valuable encouragement throughout – Greg James, Matt ‘Mattchin Tendulkar’ Horan, Mark ‘Sharky’ Sharman, Barney Douglas, Tamzin Merchant, Steve Williams, Hattie Williams, Craig Brown and Florence Welch.

My agent, Nick Walters, has been great throughout the process. Thank you to him and David and everyone at David Luxton Associates – they all really, sincerely love cricket, which helps. Matt Phillips, Joe Hallsworth and Saira Nabi at Bonnier have been absolutely brilliant in their almost-daily interaction and support with the writing. Special thanks to Matt for his clarity of vision and helping me find a stronger, sharper sense of what we were trying to achieve. Thanks too, to Charlotte Brown in Audio, Natalia Cacciatore in Marketing, and Nikki Mander, Beth Whitelaw and Lucy Richardson in PR. The beautiful cover is designed by Will Speed.

My grandad – Harry Odell – passed cricket on to me with endless time and enthusiasm and love. He would have been genuinely amazed that I had written the story of England’s greatest ever cricketer with him. My part in this book is for him. Finally, and most of all, thanks to Jimmy for everything he has given to cricket and for the inspiration and effect he has had on my life, from a fan to a friend.