Eshkol years (of the same party again), after Ben-Gurion's decision to retire from politics. In the Ben-Gurion days, the new immigrants from North Africa were more or less ordered to vote Mapai and were promised various advantages if they did. They didn't know any better and usually followed instructions. As for the Arabs, they were of course voting Mapai, or else.

I have told elsewhere how after a few months in my village, I received a visit from a local Shin Bet man who told me that, to make up for my coming on the Altalena, I had to report on anything of interest in the conversations of newcomers from Czechoslovakia. Of course, I did, to make good on my crime. My career as a snitch ended very soon, as I had nothing worthwhile to tell about.

About 150,000 demonstrators in Tel Aviv and thousands more all over the country.

Sunday, May 7

The funeral of the young Arab killed after a road dispute in the Gilboa area by a Jew living nearby brought thousands of local Arabs onto the streets and was punctuated by a series of pro-Palestinian and anti-Israeli outbursts. Does it mean that, in Israel too, the hatred goes on, unabated? Probably.

Two new roads are planned in the West Bank: one for Israelis, one for Palestinians. Moreover, there are plans for the construction of new housing units in the territories. The settlement policy and its apartheid dimension go relentlessly ahead.

Ben-Gvir plans to speak at the yearly reception hosted by the diplomats of the European countries in Israel to celebrate the anniversary of the EU. Why did Netanyahu delegate the evil clown to speak at the event? Probably to make up for reining him in on other matters and to keep the coalition afloat.
