Thursday, June 8

Five killed in the Arab community, near Nazareth, in what appears to be infighting between criminal gangs. Another Arab victim elsewhere. This is a complete loss of control and a scandal. It shows the total incompetence or, worse, the total indifference of the police and of the minister for internal security, the evil clown Ben-Gvir. Netanyahu wants the Shin Bet to get involved, but there is opposition from the organization since that would weaken its campaign against terror attacks and possibly disclose some of its operational strategy.

Netanyahu informed Blinken that a nuclear deal between the US and Iran would not limit Israel's freedom of action in any way.

Friday, June 9

In an interview with Sky News, Netanyahu expressed doubts about the possibility of reaching an agreement in the negotiations at the President's Residence. He dismissed the economic consequences of a stalemate and spoke enthusiastically of the possibility of an agreement with Saudi Arabia.

As a consequence of the wave of killings in the Arab community, the consensus among commentators is that Ben-Gvir should be sacked. He, as is his habit, accuses in response the police and particularly its chief, Shabtai: instead of spending his time on the appointment of friends, he should deal with crime. Ben-Gvir will not be dismissed, but he is generally distrusted and despised.

In poll results broadcasted by Channel 13 on the evening news, Gantz tops Netanyahu as favorite in all essential positions (prime minister, minister of defense, etc.). Lapid is also ahead of Netanyahu at times.

Saturday, June 10