went to Hamas and financed its military preparations. Avigdor Lieberman, for a while defense minister in Netanyahu's government, saw and warned of the danger, and then resigned when no policy change occurred. The financing of Gaza went on, and at some stage money was simply transferred in Qatari suitcases, with Israeli encouragement. Indirectly, it continued to finance Hamas.

As Curd Jürgens is quoted at the beginning of this diary: "One cannot eat as much as one wishes to …" Revelation follows revelation, each more outrageous than the last, and the war goes on without an immediate end in sight. It may be time to conclude this text.
