media and flooding Palestinian education and youth more generally. In the last few days, Palestinian shooters from East Jerusalem have been, successively, thirteen and fourteen years old. The leader of the West Bank Palestinians (the Palestinian Authority), Mahmoud Abbas, although moderate in principle, is elderly, corrupt, inefficient, and increasingly confrontational.

Today, a new incident between Smotrich and Defense Minister Gallant regarding the evacuation of a Jewish settler's farm illegally established on Palestinian land. On the defense minister's orders and with Netanyahu's reluctant agreement, border police units started evacuating the farm. Youth from yeshivot and a female Knesset member from Jewish Power tried to block the action. Just before the end of the evacuation, Netanyahu gave the order to stop it. Gallant is outraged. Smotrich: "If Gallant has a problem, he can leave his keys …" As for Ben-Gvir, he is accusing the border police unit of brutality, which drew a strong response from the commander of the force. Let us hope that, with clash after clash, this coalition will disintegrate.

Some $4 billion has already left Israeli banks for foreign ones as a result of the judicial reform.

The guerrilla war between Ben-Gvir and the chief of police, Kobi Shabtai, continues. Moreover, some commentators believe that Netanyahu has lost control over the events and that he is finished. Hopefully.

President Herzog asks Attorney-General Gali Baharav-Miara to allow Netanyahu to launch a dialogue between the coalition and opposition—not to participate in it, but just to launch it. She refused; it is precluded by a previous court decision that forbids him to deal with judicial issues that
