that there is a kind of unconscious drive to occupy the whole of Eretz Israel among many Israelis.

The commander of the air force held an exceptional meeting with reserve pilots who are considering refusing to serve if the judiciary reform and its enabling laws are passed. This is an unheard-of threat in Israel. The commander seemed to fully understand the motivation of this elite group, although of course he tried to dissuade them.

The Chief of Staff Unit officers who, in July 1976, liberated the Entebbe hostages detained by Palestinian and German hijackers in the Ugandan capital, have declared their opposition to the reform. The extraordinary Entebbe operation was under the command of Netanyahu's brother Yoni, who was killed in the fighting.

Netanyahu and Sara'le have to leave on an official visit to Italy in four days from now. The El Al company cannot find a copilot and a cabin crew for the trip …

It is probably in order to strengthen his credentials before this visit to a neofascist government that Netanyahu is backing Smotrich's attempts to clear himself from the general revulsion caused by his call for eradicating Huwara. In his comments in Hebrew (not in English) the prime minister added criticism of the US ambassador to Israel, who had expressed himself against Smotrich's remarks: "Nobody is immune from mistakes, not even diplomats."

Tomorrow, the Knesset is supposed to vote on a law allowing Likud Knesset members and their families to collect contributions to cover the prime minister's legal and medical expenses. As for Sara'le and her two sons, their security will be ensured from now on by the Shin Bet. In the
