The Knesset voted for the "incapacity law" limiting the conditions upon which a sitting prime minister can be declared unfit for office. This protects Netanyahu from being compelled to leave office as a result of the indictments against him.

Massive demonstrations all over the country, particularly in Bnei Brak, the Haredi area.

Defense Minister Gallant said in the morning that he would make an announcement. Netanyahu is expected to speak in the evening. Now, at 9:00 p.m., Gallant has decided not to speak, after conferring with the PM. Everybody is waiting for Netanyahu's announcement.

Netanyahu spoke. He announced that he is getting involved in the judicial overhaul (now that the Knesset has amended the incapacity law that precluded his intervening in judicial matters). According to all interpretations (and also according to me), he did not say anything new, except for his personal involvement in the overhaul, and announced: "Rely on me." That isn't enough. The crisis will get worse. Lapid, paraphrasing the Bible, commented: "The voice is Netanyahu's, the hands are Levin's."

The attorney general to Netanyahu: you are not allowed to intervene in legal issues; you are acting against the law.
