East and West, Jonathan Cape, 2006, p.246.

69. https://ec.europa.eu/commission/presscorner/detail/en/STATEMENT_21_4283

70. file:///C:/Users/a490/Downloads/Statement_by_President_von_der_Leyen_on_the_Europe-Wide_Day_of_Remembrance_for_the_victims_of_all_totalitarian_and_authoritarian_regimes.pdf

71. See, for example, Arnez, J, Slovenia in European Affairs: Reflections on Slovenian Political History, League of CSA, New York, Washington, 1958, pp. 103 – 116.

72. McCauley, p.11.

73. Winston Churchill, Triumph and Tragedy (Houghton Mifflin, Boston, MA, 1954) as cited in McCauley, p. 116.

74. Norman Davies wrote: '…historians have a problem. Somehow they must find a way of describing a complicated war in which, after several twists and turns, the combined forces of Western democracy and Stalinist tyranny triumphed over Nazi Germany… At the same time, without minimising the Western contribution, they must emphasise that Stalin's triumph had nothing to do with freedom and justice, and that by Western standards the overall outcome was only partly satisfactory. It is a tall order. To date, no one has succeeded.' Quoted from Europe East and West, p. 248.