- Time management and value for time learnt as a child are two of the most valuable assets earned early in life.
- People who do not take charge of their lives are lathicharged by time.

ON WOMEN

- As long as women continue to be in a position of receiving rather than giving, they shall continue to bear injustice.
- Empowered women who reach tough or unconventional positions make choices not sacrifices.
- In the Indian society, a women starts with a handicap. As and when she overcomes it, it is with her own determination and will. Then men come out to support and encourage her. This is a basic and fundamental fact. I may have been discriminated against but men joined with me to prevent such discrimination. Women have to develop the will and determination and constantly review their situation. Only then will the men side with them. With more women coming in, the situation will change.
- The empowered woman is the woman who can make her own decisions and face their consequences. It shows a sense of maturity as well as a sense of responsibility. A mature woman also reviews her own decisions periodically. An empowered woman will be in a position to give, not receive. And her experience will help her to guide her children.
- Empowerment is not economic empowerment alone. It is mental maturity, self-dignity, the ability not to look down on herself. A mother can give dignity to herself. An empowered woman will not permit any disrespect to her and will be in a position to preserve and protect her self-dignity.

ON CONTROVERSY

- Decision making, in certain situations, is always controversial. The only way one can avoid this is to take NO decisions and leave the problem as it is. Seniors who do not solve a problem become a part of the problem themselves.
- When you work differently, it changes the equation. The status quo is broken. Status quo spells security. When there is a clash between status quo and change, it generates insecurity. Hence change is not tolerated. It is a question of the power equation.

ON SERVICE/PROFESSION

- Service in government is a service of trust. Anyone not doing all that should be done is liable for prosecution for breach of trust.
- Political administration is a national service. It calls for maximum sacrifice of one's self. One ought to enter this field only when one is prepared for total surrender.
- People are looking for a participative government, which is transparent and accountable and not an invisible, secretive and insensitive bureaucracy.
- Visibility in the case of an administrator increases accountability and therefore integrity and sensitivity in the services.
