

On 27 October 1961 Soviet and American tanks confront each other at the ‘Checkpoint Charlie’ crossing between East and West Berlin. There are those who believe this event was more dangerous than the Cuban missile crisis. Neither Kennedy nor Khrushchev wanted a confrontation, and the crisis was resolved using a secret diplomatic backchannel. (Public Domain: USAMHI)