cannot be repaired for months in the GDR. This is being hushed up in East Berlin.

Under Ulbricht, you had to wait for about four years to get an apartment in the capital. Now you must wait about eight years on average, and that despite the housing construction programme which came twenty years too late!

We demand that party finances be published. The parasitic party bureaucracy has no claim to even one pfennig of the state budget.

Why does the GDR rank at the top of the world record of divorces, suicide rates and alcohol abuse?

Where are the defects of this society to be found?

Let us name another problem that is seriously worrying the entire population. The physicians at the university clinic in Berlin can’t operate on patients suffering from cancer before a waiting period of two to four years, unless a patient is able to buy a place in the hospital at the cost of enormous sums of money. The waiting periods for surgery are a death sentence in many cases.

While the clinics of the bigwigs are half empty, there is a shortage of unbelievably underpaid physicians and medical helpers in emergency stations and hospitals. Injured people lie around for hours without first aid being applied. Strong patients must help transport seriously injured people. What medical helper can feed his family on DDM350? Qualified personnel are being moved to special clinics and naturally get better pay there.

We demand that an end must be made to the irresponsible expenditures for performance sports and television amateurs. What is a gold medal worth if it cost DDM25 million marks? Why does a professional soccer player make DDM2,000 while a highly qualified and specialised physician makes only DDM1,500, night shifts included?

We ask: Has the working class fought for the eight-hour workday or the incessant shift system? Families are separated day and night, yet the party
