5. A few weeks later, Brezhnev was singing the same tune. He reminded comrades of his ‘respect for sovereignty;’ but at the same time, defended marching into a nation where socialism was deemed to be threatened. ‘When internal and external supporters hostile to socialism attempt to turn the development of any socialist country in the direction of the restoration of the capitalist system, when a threat arises to the cause of socialism in that country, a threat to the security of the socialist commonwealth as a whole – it already becomes not only a problem for the people of that country but also a general problem, the concern of all socialist countries.’
