

As the Central Committee secretary for security issues, he held responsibility for the police, the state security service and the ‘National People’s Army’.