Léa wanted to believe him; logic told her that what he'd said was true. But as her hand gripped the rifle's cold metal forearm, doubt rose at the back of her mind.