Here, the {id} part of the URL is dynamic, meaning that it can accept any value that represents a user identifier. This configuration directs all GET requests matching /user/{id} to the show method within the

Generating and Editing Controller

Creating UserController

We can generate the controller by running the following Artisan command:

---

php artisan make:controller UserController

This command creates a new file named UserController.php in the app/Http/Controllers directory.

Defining Controller Logic