knowledge that he has devoted his best energies to the service of the good cause.