an average of forty-five percent of the national wealth, people were just fed up.