University; Marvin Taylor at the Fales Library and the staff at the Tamiment Library at New York University; the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture and Billy Rose Theatre Division at the New York Public Library; Taronda Spencer and Holly Smith at the Spelman College Archives; Lisbet Tellefsen; Getty Research Institute in Los Angeles; Archives of the Freie University in Berlin; the Mauer Documentation Center in Berlin; Elen Woods at the Keith Haring Foundation; Justinan Jampol and the staff at the Wende Museum in Los Angeles; AnnaLee Pauls at the Rare Books and Special Collections, Firestone Library, Princeton University; and the Columbia University Rare Book & Manuscript Library.

Elements from the research related to A Wall of Our Own have been previously published in books on Leonard Freed (This Is the Day: The March on Washington [Getty Publications] and a new critical edition of Made in Germany [Steidl Verlag]); Shinkichi Tajiri (Universal Paradoxes [University of Leiden/University of Chicago Press]); and Audre Lorde (Audre Lorde's Transnational Legacies [University of Massachusetts Press]). Thank you to editors, including Greg Brittion, Stella Bolaki, Sabine Broeck, and Helen Westgeest, for including me in these projects. I also thank fellow panelists and audiences at conferences for the American Studies Association; the American Historical Association; the American Literature Association; the College Art Association; the Experience Music Project; the Association for Slavic, East European, and Eurasian Studies; the Northeast Modern Language Association; and the Texas Institute for Literary and Textual Studies for sharing dialogue about early versions of my chapters.

Several standout individuals are worthy of much admiration and greatly inspired the research portions of this project. Brigitte Freed, I am so profoundly grateful for our visits full of shared wisdom and nourishment. Thank you for generously exchanging ideas and teaching me so much about time and motion. Same to Elke Susannah Freed for making me smile and reflect every time I'm in Garrison. Giotta and Ryu Tajiri, I treasure the time we spent in Amsterdam and Baarlo and thank you for your care of your family's collection. Dagmar Schultz, I am touched by your opening of your personal archive, sharing of your stories, and previewing glimpses of your wonderful film, Audre Lorde: The Berlin Years, with me before its release. Stew and Heidi Rodewald, thank you for continually exploding my mind