THE PROBLEM OF LOADED LANGUAGE, PARTICULARLY THE "NAZI-ZIONIST EQUATION"

When we consider the rhetoric of the anti-Zionists, particularly of the Palestinian Arabs, it becomes evident that in their choice of terminology and language directed at the outside world they have endeavored to conceal their true purpose, which is not peace, but politicide. For them, the real meaning of "justice" and their strategic goal is the liquidation of the State of Israel by all possible means.[28] This, for example, is the real intent of the current political initiative, "Justice for Palestine." Not surprisingly, Articles 22 and 23 of the Palestine Covenant proclaim this strategic objective in unambiguous language.[29] Although formulated half a century ago, the same terminology pollutes contemporary Palestinian public pronouncements, their press, and textbooks. In fact, the Sixth Council of Fatah which took place in August 2009 in Bethlehem reaffirmed the entire Palestine National Covenant or Charter, including Article 9, which calls for the continuation of the violent struggle against the Zionist-colonial entity until its ultimate destruction,[30] and Article 22, named above, which states that: "The Zionist movement is essentially fanatical and racialist; its objectives involve aggression, expansion and the establishment of colonial settlements, and its methods are those of Fascists and Nazis (author's italics)."[31]

Several decades ago, Robert Wistrich cited Ahmed Shukairy (1908–1980), founder of the PLO and author of the Palestine Covenant or Charter, who claimed in a UN speech of 4 December 1961: "Zionism was nastier than Fascism, uglier than Nazism, more hateful than colonialism, more dangerous than imperialism. Zionism was a combination of all these traits."[32] The amalgamation of such epithets is consistent with subsequent accusations of "racism" and "apartheid" and belongs to the same lineage of propaganda sloganeering.[33]

It is noteworthy that Article 20 of the Covenant pronounced the "Balfour Declaration, the Mandate for Palestine and everything that has been based upon them null and void."[34] This is precisely what the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, Hajj-Amin al-Husseini (1897–1974), hoped to receive from his Nazi friends, as he stated in his address at a ceremony in Berlin on November 2, 1943, commemorating the anniversary of the Balfour Declaration. On this festive occasion, the Mufti declared, that
