halo of "heroic resistance" to Israeli "fascism." Such falsifications did nto suddenly spring forth during the last Gaza war. They have steadily infiltrated the media, the universities, the churches, educated Western opinion as well as much of the contemporary European political elite during recent decades. This "new" antisemitism (intimately linked to the conflict over Palestine) has enjoyed a long incubation period and its poisoned fruit is now visible for all to see—including those who have lived in denial for the past forty years.

8. See Manfred Gerstenfeld, interview by Mark Elchardus, Israel National News, 21 May 2013. Elchardus studied Dutch-speaking schools in Brussels and the attitudes of students from 14 years of age. See also the detailed research by Günther Jikeli, Antisemitismus und Diskriminierungs-wahrnehmungen junger Muslime in Europa (Essen, 2012) which confirms the prevalence of "classic" antisemitic stereotypes among young Muslims (Jews are rich, stingy, conspire against non-Jews, etc.). These attitudes are indeed widespread, significantly more so than among non-Jews.

9. See Rapport sur L'antisémitisme en France, 2013 (Paris, 2014) produced by the Service de Protection de la Communauté Juive. The report from 2012, based on French Interior Ministry statistics, showed that 55% of all racist violence targeted Jews. The number of violent hate crimes recorded against Jews was ninety-six. There were only nine anti-Muslim acts, though there are ten times more Muslims than Jews living in France.
