Land of Israel) is "illegal" though these territories are "disputed" rather than "occupied." The authors of this policy pretend that the establishment of a Palestinian state is vital for European interests and credibility; therefore the EU has engaged in a process of Palestinian nation-building rather than state and institution building.[10]

THE ORGANIZATION OF THE ISLAMIC CONFERENCE/COOPERATION

The Organization of Islamic Cooperation (OIC) is an umbrella organization created in 1969 bringing together fifty-six Muslim or Muslim-majority states and the Palestinian Authority. According to its secretary-general, the OIC is the second-largest intergovernmental organization after the United Nations. At the Third Extraordinary Session of the Islamic Conference of Foreign Ministers (Fez, 18–20 September 1980), the OIC forbade, under threat of punishment, any country from having an embassy in Jerusalem. Since then, even Western countries have complied and moved their embassies to Tel Aviv.[11]

In August 1990, the OIC states adopted the Cairo Declaration on Human Rights in Islam. Articles 24 and 25 declare that "All the rights and freedoms stipulated in this Declaration are subject to the Islamic Shari'a" and "The Islamic Shari'a is the only source of reference for the explanation or clarification of any of the articles of this Declaration."

At the 11th Islamic Summit held at Dakar on 13–14 March 2008, the OIC adopted a charter stipulating its principles and objectives, the first of which promotes unification of the Ummah (world Islamic community) by rooting it in Islamic values and religion, and proclaims solidarity in defending Muslim causes and interests.

ISESCO (the Islamic Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization) is an official institution and one of the main organs of the OIC. Since 1982 it has conducted dozen of programs on Islamic and Christian holy sites in Israel. The principal ones were the international symposia, held in Rabat (1993 and 2002) under the patronage of the King of Morocco within the framework of the Islamic-Christian Dialogue, and another convened in Amman in 2004 under the patronage of the King of Jordan. The Rabat and Amman conferences represent a monumental case of historical mythomania seeking to deny any trace of Judaism in the lands of the Bible and to prove its Arab and Muslim character since the third millennium BC. The Jews are accused of "Judaizing" the biblical prophets who were, in fact, Muslims, and of usurping the antiquity of other peoples since the Jews have no history of
