> In the struggle, Israel is only the tip of the iceberg. If the Zionist entity were on the other end of the Mediterranean, our enemy is [still] the Jew. No longer Ahl al-Kitab (People of the Book) deserving "dhimmi" protection—he is a forger, an imposter, murderer of the Prophet, falsifying archaeology, with no tie to Al-Quds (Jerusalem) of the "Bible."[5]

This WSF program listed sixteen points:

11. Sovereignty over natural resources: land, water, food
12. End Israel's foreigh trade treaties with the European Union and the (Latin American) MERCOSUR
13. Military embargo
14. Support anti-Zionist Jews everywhere
15. Activate media on Israeli colonialist racism
16. Support poplar resistance to the occupation

That year, the religious dimension was added in two workshops on the "Kairos Document." For the first time, we witnessed a direct ID theft of the Jewish religious narrative, proclaiming the racism of such terms as "Chosen People" and "Promised Land." A few weeks later, the debate reached the Scottish Church, which brought forward new formulae: "We are all chosen peoples" and "The land is promised to all."[6]

The interstice between civil society and member states on these issues is UNISPAL—the public face of the UN Divison for Palestinian Rights or the UN Committee for the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People. Its 2011 meeting at UNESCO in Paris presaged Palestine's full entry into that UN agency. There and, at a later session in Rome at the FAO, projects were planned against the Jewish National Fund and Teva pharmaceuticals, while AIDA (an umbrella for ninety-two NGOs, including CARE and Oxfam) ordered suspension of the EU-Israel Trade Treaty, and Palestinian Minister of Women's Affairs, Rahiba Diab called for the "disestablishment of Israel as a State." I personally heard the UNISPAL Committee Chair, Abdou Sallam Diallo of Senegal state: "A drop of water on
