ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Michael R. Auslin is the inaugural Payson J. Treat Distinguished Research Fellow in Contemporary Asia at the Hoover Institution, Stanford University. He is also a senior fellow at the Foreign Policy Research Institute and a fellow of the Royal Historical Society. Prior to joining Hoover, he was an associate professor of history at Yale University, a resident scholar at the American Enterprise Institute, and a visiting professor at Tokyo University. His books include The End of the Asian Century: War, Stagnation, and the Risks to the World's Most Dynamic Region; Pacific Cosmopolitans: A Cultural History of U.S.-Japan Relations; and Negotiating with Imperialism: The Unequal Treaties and the Culture of Japanese Diplomacy. He has been a regular contributor to the Wall Street Journal and National Review, and has written articles and essays for The Atlantic, Financial Times, Foreign Affairs, Politico, and The Spectator, among other publications. He was a Fulbright scholar and was named a Young Global Leader by the World Economic Forum, among other honors, and serves as the vice chair of the Wilton Park USA Foundation.

Payson J. Treat, for whom Auslin's current Hoover position is named, held the first professorship in "Far Eastern history" at any American university, a post created for him at Stanford in 1906.