even less! We grew up hearing Colonel Bogey's march, or other martial music of the army, which he used to play with his knuckles on the dining table at dinner every day. He made us kids recite the 'mool mantra', the first stanza of our holy scripture, before food was served. After dinner, he would regale us with stories of the Great War. We would hear him with rapt attention.

Sketch 1.1: Punjab and the Sikh Empire.