two years, as a member of our air force training team. My father retired as a lieutenant colonel in 1973, after meritoriously serving the EME and the army for over thirty years. For our family, it was a matter of pride and an honour with four of us serving the nation at the same time: more so during the Indo-Pak war of 1971. Here I would like to make a mention of my younger siblings – Inderjeet Singh, who distinguished himself as an entrepreneur; D.J. Singh, an enterprising international banker; and Veena, the youngest and only sister, a bright scholar, educationist and administrator who lives in Norway. This makes up my immediate family.
