mounted this closed prisoners' van and were bumped away to Naini. The Superintendent of Police, an Englishman, who had arrested us on that morning of Boxing Day looked glum and unhappy. I am afraid we had spoiled his Christmas.

And so to prison!

> "Absent thee from felicity a while,
> And for a season draw thy breath in pain."