It was a lot to assimilate as it was my first posting to Nagaland, my only prior knowledge being from the visit to Nagaland as a student of the HC course and then as the DS. But on both occasions, the briefing of the 3 Corps had been more focused on conventional operations, since there was a war game to follow. I had to start from scratch, reading up on the history and culture of Nagaland, the genesis of the insurgency and the prognosis for the future. Lt Gen KJ Singh had been the Col GS in Nagaland some years earlier, and he had also given me some background information. Though much of the dynamics had changed since then, it helped to understand the process by which we had reached the present stage. Within a month
