As DIG at Tihar headquarters, Jaydev Sarangi had successfully managed to persuade the lower staff to go in for insurance policies for themselves. Initially, most of them were opposed to this scheme, known as the ‘Sarangi scheme’, wherein for a monthly premium of Rs 4–5 the insured person’s family was assured a sum of Rs 1 lakh at the time of his death. However, after two sepoys’ families received Rs 1 lakh each, everybody then wanted to get insured and, that too, for double the amount.
