Bedi was approached directly. Normally, the sponsoring agency sends an invitation to the Union Government, which decides whether to send the particular officer or not.

Ms Bedi was also invited by the US President Bill Clinton for breakfast on 2 February, but this time the trip was cleared by the breakfast committee and the Union Home Ministry.

The letter also speaks of her populist stance towards jail inmates, who are allowed to approach the National Human Rights Commission directly. The special facilities accorded to Charles Sobhraj and the high-profile criminal's project of writing a biography for Ms Bedi has also not gone done [sic] well with the Ministry of Home Affairs.

This is the second time in Ms Bedi's career that the State Administration has gone against her. Prior to her posting in Tihar Jail, Ms Bedi was moved out of the post of DIG, Mizoram, after she openly criticised the State Administration over the admission issue. She wanted her daughter to be admitted through the State quota into [the] Capital's Lady Hardinge Medical College.

Upon this development, Kiran replied by writing a letter to the LG:

Hon'ble Lt. Governor Mr Dave,

This is to invite your attention to a news item in Indian Express today (21 April 1995) under the heading 'Shift out Kiran Bedi, Dave tells ministry' (page 1).
2. Could your office please confirm the news item? You will appreciate that this will enable me [to] apprise you, if you so desire, on various issues of Prison Management and myself which find mention in the news report.
3. In all fairness, this would be in the spirit of natural justice.

With regards,

Yours sincerely,
(Dr KIRAN BEDI)

Kiran has not received any reply to this date.
