body. Attendants at the mortuary told the relatives that the deceased was brought by officers from Parklands police station having been shot as he was running away at City Park. A postmortem conducted by Dr. Peter Ndegwa revealed that Mwangi died of 'multiple organ injuries due to multiple gunshot wounds'. According to the pathologist, 'the fatal bullets were shot from behind. The victim must have been about 20 cm from his attacker. He also seems to have been on the move (e.g. the bullet traveling parallel to the femur). The other gunshot on the leg seems to have been shot at a closer range and from the front. Could he have been shot once and asked to run?'

Geoffrey Kung'u who sold shoes for a living disappeared on 8/10/07 at around 11.00 am after he had met his wife at the Country Bus Station, Nairobi. According to the wife, Kung'u was going to buy shoes then leave for upcountry (Murang'a) on the same day. A few minutes later, the wife tried calling him severally but the phone went unanswered. At around 5:00 pm, she called again but the phone was switched off. The next day, the wife went to several police stations including Kamukunji, Shauri Moyo, Makongeni and Central to no avail. On Wednesday, she went to the Industrial Area prison with no success. On Thursday and Friday she went to search for him in Langata and Ruai police stations still with no success. On Friday the 12th of October 2007, while watching news on KTN at 7:00 pm, she identified all the items and clothing belonging to her husband, more specifically his green jacket with patches of white and orange (see below) which had been discovered earlier in the day by officers of the KNCHR who were accompanied by the media to Kiserian after some bodies had been spotted by area residents. She told the KNCHR that Kung'u had previously been arrested twice by the Kwekwe police squad on accusation of being a member of the illegal "Mungiki" sect. Upon the first arrest, Kung'u paid Kshs 2,000 to secure his release after the arresting officers threatened to kill him. He was reportedly arrested for the second time on 7/9/07 and taken to Makongeni Police station. When she went to visit him, a Kamba officer identified only as a Mr. Muli and another one called Peter asked for Kshs. 10,000 in exchange for his release or else they would kill him. She pleaded with the police to give her time to mobilize the money, which she brought on 9/9/07 securing his release. A postmortem on the remains of Kung'u was conducted on 24/10/07 at the City Mortuary. The body had significantly been gnawed by predators. The whole left leg was missing from the hip-joint. All the muscle and tissue of the right lower limb and all abdominal organs were missing leaving bare bones and some ligaments. According to the pathologist, the cause of death was 'severe head injury due to double gunshots to the head. These gunshots were fired at very close range suggesting execution'.

Patrick Mwangi, a conductor of a Matatu along Route 45 Githurai, disappeared on 17/10/07. On the day he went missing, he was standing at Githurai 44 stage waiting for his driver to come pick him as he was from lunch. Suddenly persons who identified themselves as policemen arrested him together
