```
            ]);

    }

    parent::report($exception);

}
```

Here, you check whether the exception should be reported and log the error message along with the exception details.

Customizing Render Method

The render() method converts exceptions into HTTP responses. You can tailor this method to handle different types of exceptions differently or to return custom JSON responses for API endpoints. Update the render() method as follows:

```
public function render($request, Throwable $exception)

{
```