id="chat-messages">

This above setup means that every time a new chat message is broadcast from your server, the client-side JavaScript listens for the event, logs it to the console, and dynamically updates the chat interface with the new message.