```
                File::delete($file->getRealPath());

            }

        }

        $this->info('Logs have been cleared successfully!');

        return 0;

    }

}
```

Here in the above snippet, the job is to iterate through the storage/logs directory and delete all log files except the .gitignore file. When executed, it prints a confirmation message to the console. This is a straightforward example of how you can define custom job logic to perform routine maintenance.

Testing Custom Command Manually